

Hereford Women | Dedicated to the Juniors

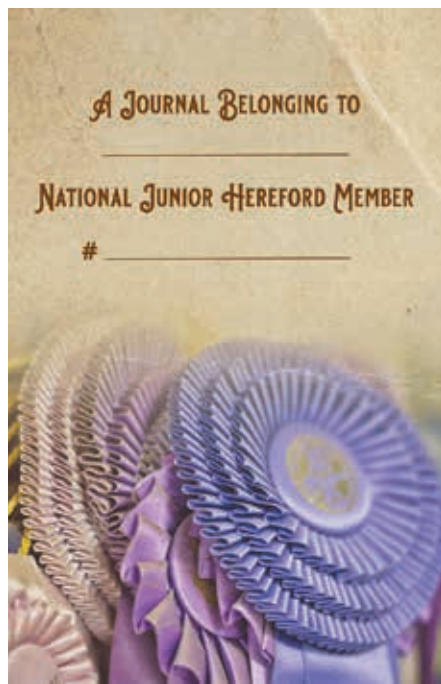

by Shannon Worrell

National Hereford Women (NHW) strives to find ways to encourage and to inspire junior Hereford breeders. NHW works diligently to raise funds that allow the organization to award numerous scholarships and awards. Most of these scholarships and awards require junior members to complete in-depth applications and essays. These applications are tedious and require an immense amount of information and knowledge from the applicant.

Many times, this necessary information causes a barrier for junior members to complete these applications. Therefore, the NHW has designed a high-end Junior Journal that follows the path of a National Junior Hereford Association (NJHA) member.

A guide to success

The Junior Journal is divided into sections representing the peewee, junior, intermediate and senior divisions. The journal also includes Hereford breed information and history, NHW material and general beef industry information. Certified Hereford Beef® and the NJHA Fed Steer Shootout challenge information is also highlighted. There are dedicated pages that represent some of the questions of the scholarship applications and necessary award documentation. This information should assist in the completion of award and scholarship applications.

A key component of the Junior Journal is Hereford members, breeders and industry associates had the opportunity to purchase ad space throughout the book. These ads allow contact information to be readily available to the junior members and helps keep the cost of the Junior Journal reasonable for all of our members to purchase.

While the goal of the Junior Journal is to help keep junior members' information organized for scholarship applications, it can also serve as a memoir for generations. NHW members hope this book will become a family treasure and adorn all Hereford families' coffee tables for generations.

The Junior Journal can be purchased on our Facebook store. These journals will make excellent gifts and awards. Plus, by purchasing a journal, you will be helping support NHW scholarships and educational events.
